

MATT CLINGER | DIRECTOR OF INSTRUCTION

For Director of Instruction, Matt Clinger, golf instruction is not only a career but a source of joy and passion. Each morning, Matt looks forward to getting up and teaching his expertise to golfers of all ages while watching their progress from a front row seat.

Matt has been teaching golfers since the year 2008 and took on a full-time Director of Instruction role in 2010 at Eagle's Landing Country Club in Stockbridge, GA. After studying and learning from Charlie King, a former Top 5 Golf Digest Instructor, Matt created the Eagle's Landing Golf Academy. Through his work with the program, and particularly his work with junior golfers, Matt was given honorable mention as a Top 50 US Kids Coach after only 6 months. Since then, Matt has opened and operated four golf academies, coached a men's college golf team, women's college golf team, and a high school girl's team. Matt has worked with golfers of all skill levels, including 2 Symetra Tour players and one Canadian Tour Player.

Matt's philosophy for teaching is that no player swings the same as the next golfer, therefore basic skills and technique can help each individual player to lower their scores and improve. He prides himself in his ability to lower his players handicaps through the short game - what he believes is the key to success in becoming a great golfer.

At Towhee Club, Matt offers customized programs and packages to help any golfer reach their goals. Matt also served as a Master Club Fitter, having earned certifications with TaylorMade, Mizuno and Callaway over the past 11 years.
